Summary

To become the best possible employer, it is important that we listen to our employees. In 2022 together with Effectory as an external provider of Employee Listening Solutions, we organised our first Employee Satisfaction Survey within Digital Power. Through this survey, we wanted to collect employees' points of view on our organisation, to improve the quality of Digital Power as an employer. This survey & its research were conducted with the help of Marit Loonen, Mariska Stokkermans, Youp van der Graaf and Rogier Kamer.

In this report, you can find detailed numbers about the survey's open and closed questions, including an overview of what is going well and what can still be improved. The average employee satisfaction, on a scale of 1-10, is 7.8. The eNetPromoterScore, the number that tells us if our employees would recommend working at Digital Power, scores 60. The benchmark provided by Effectory, which is the average score for other consultancy companies, is 22 for the eNetPromotor Score. Digital Power's score of 60 is very high in comparison.

Things Digital Power could improve as an employer include the following topics; payment to be better in line with the level of responsibility (average satisfaction score of 5.1), clarity on the decision-making process within Digital Power (5.1) and the organization of work processes (5.9). 'Remuneration' is mentioned as something that needs improvement by 41% of the participants of the open questions, followed by 'work pressure in the team' (27%). The top 5 is completed by 'collaboration within the organisation' (25%), 'communication within my organisation' (23%) and 'work environment (conditions, resources)' (19%). A full list of all possible improvements can be found on page 22.

During the analysis, we also looked at what goes well, and what employees are proud of. This includes the enjoyment of working together with colleagues (9.1 on average) and feeling safe (9.1). 'My organisation's culture' was mentioned as something that the employee is proud of by 76% of the participants of the open questions, followed by 'my team's dynamic (atmosphere, trust)' (68%). At numbers 3-5 we find 'my organisation as an employer' (53%), 'collaboration within organisation' (31%) and 'work environment (conditions, resources)' 28%.

In short, many things are going well, yet there is still room for improvement. In the coming year, we will regularly check in with the organisation to continue listening to your feedback. Our goal is to use these results to evaluate if Digital Power has improved where it needs to and continue to do well in the areas where it already performs well.

Survey

Our core values; development, together, and from data to doing, are created by us and we try to live by them in the decisions we make and the actions we take. A satisfied employee leads to an organisation that likes to work together. Therefore it is important that we continuously check in with our organisation on how we are doing.

With this survey, we want to determine what goes well, and what points of attention there are that require improvement. This first survey is also to get a baseline for future surveys.

The survey has been set up by Effectory, a company chosen with the help of Charlotte Vonkeman out of 3 possible companies.

Methods

All employees with at least 3 months of working experience in our organisation have been asked to fill in the survey. As we sent out the survey on the 3rd of October 2022, these were all employees that had started working at Digital Power before the 3rd of July 2022. Those invited could partake in the survey from October 3rd until October 31st.

A total of 110 participants were invited to take part in the survey, of which 97 participants completed the survey.

Analysis of closed questions

The survey consisted of 51 closed questions on satisfaction and one question regarding the net promotor score for Digital Power as an employer. The participants were also asked to provide qualitative feedback on the organization through two open questions at the end of the survey.

The results of the closed questions are organised according to the disciplines and seniority levels in AFAS on the 2nd of October 2022. There are some discrepancies between AFAS discipline and the current discipline of consultants, which should be taken into account when reading these results. Based on the seniority levels and disciplines within the organization, we created groups and subgroups as shown in Figure 1.

Some subgroups are missing from Figure 1 (e.g. Data Science as a discipline, and some seniority levels within the disciplines). These subgroups were too small (N < 5) to receive detailed data on. Subgroups smaller than 5 would risk identification of identity. The results might be too small for specific level data, but the results were of course added to the overarching level. For instance, the results from Junior Data Engineers are in the results of the discipline level of Data Engineers.

Analysis of open questions

At the end of the survey, there were two questions with the option to select topics. These questions were:

- What are you proud of?
- What needs improvement?

For the selected topics, the employee could then elaborate on or explain the chosen topics. The answers we received were grouped by (Effectory) topic/theme. We read all answers and grouped these into sub-themes. Afterwards, we created an overview of the themes and subthemes. Through this process, we found much overlap in answers given to different themes on the question: "What are you proud of." Because of this, we decided to let go of the Effectory themes for this question and grouped the answers in new themes that fit better. For the other question ("What needs improvement"), we did not find this problem and therefore stuck to the Effectory themes.

The open questions and corresponding topics/themes.

Results

How to interpret the results

The results of the open questions provide insights into what goes well and what should get attention.
The topics of the open questions in some cases match with the closed questions, but since these were not one-on-one related, the topics mentioned in the open questions do not necessarily relate to one specific closed question. Neither do we exactly know what respondents had in mind when answering the closed questions. Therefore, we see the results of open questions as illustrative/potential causes for specific scores, but we cannot state that these are the actual causes for a specific score.

Results of closed questions provide a 'barometer'. They roughly indicate what goes well and what needs attention (for which group) and can sometimes (when available) be compared to a benchmark. The benchmark was provided by Effectory on surveys done at other consultancy companies, related to our own.
By focusing on the attention topics of the open questions, the results of the closed questions are expected to improve in future measurements.

Each question will be discussed on a separate page and will consist of a summary analysis, a graph showing scores for different groups (with in some cases a benchmark provided by Effectory), and a breakdown of the scores for all groups and subgroups mentioned in Figure 1.

Closed questions

Overview

For the eNetPromoterScore ("How likely is it that you would recommend Digital Power as an employer to others"), the lowest scores are given by TWA and DE consultants. Additionally, senior consultants of all disciplines score relatively low, especially for TWA. Staff and MT show very high scores on this question (see Figure 3).

TWA Seniors score below the benchmark. All other groups/disciplines score above the benchmark.

Overview of employee satisfaction survey question scores

The average satisfaction across all employees is 7.8. MT shows the highest average score of 9.0, and staff scores 8.3. Within the group Consultants, TWA Seniors show the lowest average satisfaction (6.8) and TWA and CX show the lowest average satisfaction as a group (7.2). DA juniors and mediors show the highest average satisfaction for consultants (8.3 and 8.2). Figure 4 provides an overview of the scores from the closed questions.

Overview scores

The following visualizations (Figure 5) give an overview of the scores for each question per group. The question numbers in this Figure are ordered from left to right based on the overall average score of Digital Power. We will use this to highlight what goes well, what is alright and what we need to focus on. This will be explained in the next few pages.

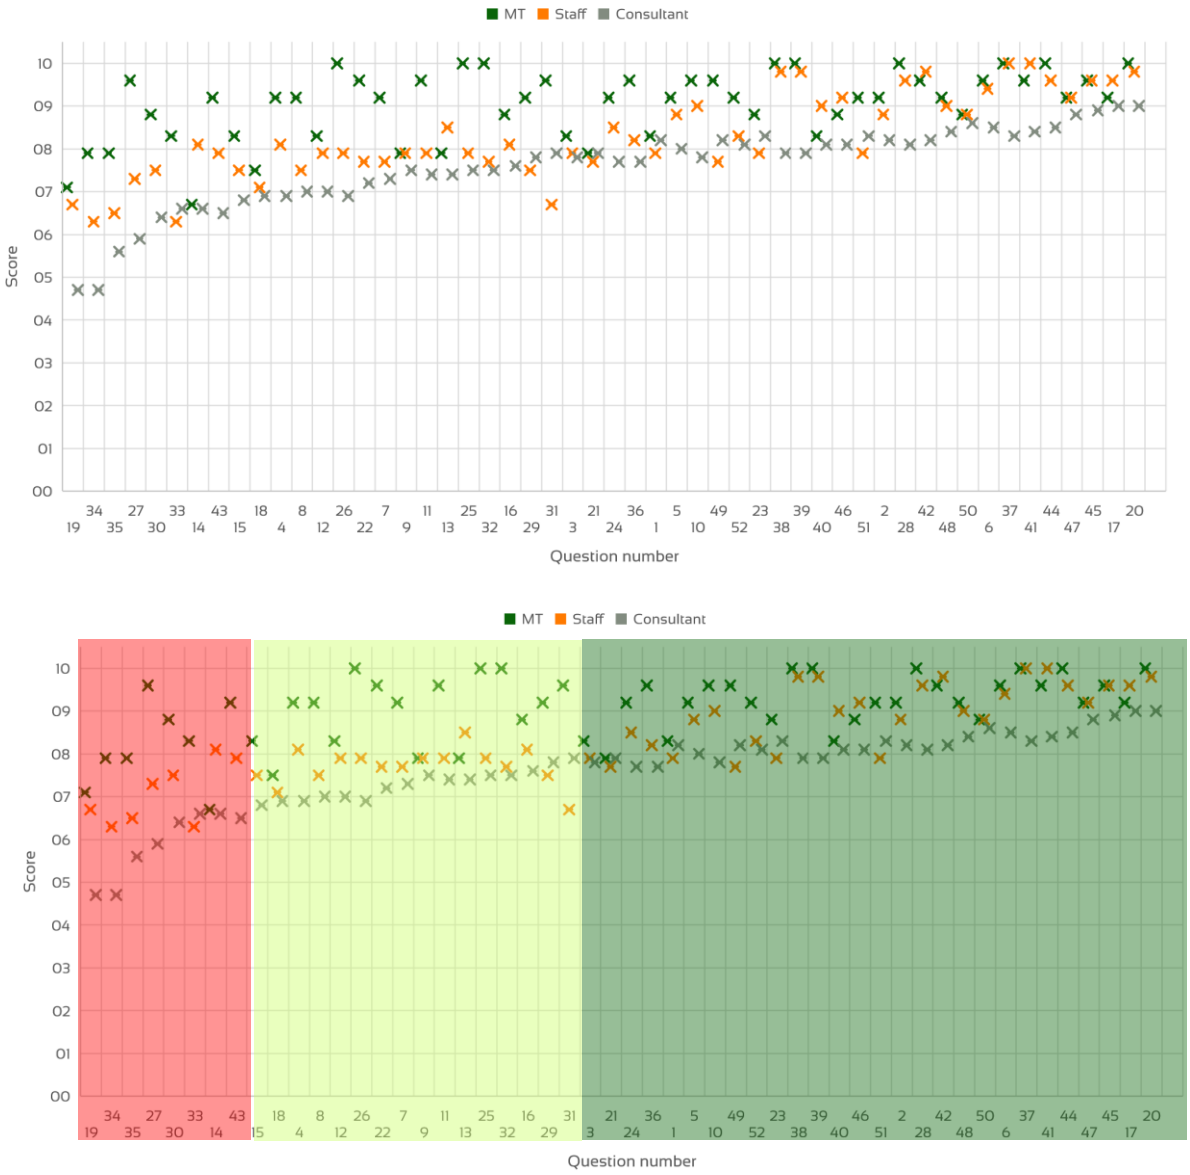

Figure 5: Overview of all question, ordered based on average score. In the bottom visualisation colored areas are added to highlight the questions determined as going well / alright / should get attention for improvement.

In the bottom visualisation of Figure 5 we highlighted the areas we determined as "going well" (on the right: average for every group ≥ 7.5), "what is alright" (middle: average for every (sub)group > 5, but not all groups are ≥ 7.5) and "what we should focus on to improve" (left: average ≤ 5.0 for at least one (sub)group).

The questions on the right end of Figure 5 generally show a high score and also show relatively small differences. These are the questions about topics that are going well. The score on these questions is on average equal to or higher than 7.5 for each group (i.e.: MT, Staff, Consultant). A full overview is given in Figure 6.

These are the questions about topics that need special attention, and we will go over these attention points per question. Keep in mind that quotes in this presentation have been translated into English (i.e.: they were originally written in Dutch). Each question will be discussed on a separate page and will consist of a short analysis, a graph with in some cases the benchmark provided by Effectory and a breakdown of the score of the groups and subgroups mentioned in Figure 1.

Points of attention

1. Question: "My pay is in line with my level of responsibility & performance"

Consultants show the lowest scores on the statement "my pay is in line with my level of responsibilities and performance". The average score consultants give is 4.7 (on a scale of 10). Staff (6.7) and MT (7.1) grade their payment as adequate. Within the group of consultants, senior consultants show the lowest scores.

An illustrative quote from open questions that relates to this question:
"I have the impression that the difference between remuneration/salaries within Digital Power and those in the market is constantly increasing. Steps have been taken in this direction, but I have the feeling that, especially given the current inflation, these need to be increased."

2. Question: "Within Digital Power there is a clear decision-making process"

Consultants show the lowest scores on the statement 'there is a clear decision-making process'. The average score consultants give is 4.7. Staff (6.3) and MT (7.9) grade this as adequate to good respectively.
The lowest scores are given by CX, DA Seniors and TWA Seniors.

"Things from MT sometimes seem to go a bit past each other. It happens that you get different answers to a question from different sides, or that you are sent from one to another because it is not entirely clear where the responsibility lies."

3. Question: "Within Digital Power the work processes are well organized"

Consultants show the lowest score on the statement 'the work processes are well organized' (5.6 on average), which is also below the benchmark (6.7). For Staff (6.5) and MT (7.9), the score is adequate to good respectively, for which the staff's score is below the benchmark (6.7) and the MT's score just above.

The lowest scores within the group consultants are for CX, DA Seniors and TWA Seniors.

"We try to be very flexible; everything is possible and allowed if necessary and in consultation, but some things can be a bit more fixed in the basics. That way, arbitrariness is less likely to arise and you are less likely to get different interpretations of rules and conditions. Not everything has to fit tightly into boxes, but simple clarity is also worth something, especially now that we are getting bigger."

4. Question: "The vision for the future of Digital Power inspires me"

Consultants (5.9) show the lowest score on 'the vision for the future of Digital Power inspires me', and also below the benchmark (6.8). For Staff (7.3) and MT (9.6), the scores are adequate to very good respectively, and above the benchmark.

Illustrative quotes from open questions:
"The ambition of Digital Power that has stuck with me is to grow to an X number of consultants, while retaining the current colleagues. A fine goal, but in my opinion not a vision that extends beyond growth."

5. Question: "Management Team knows what is happening on the work floor"

TWA (5.9), DA Seniors (5.9), and CX (5.7) consultants show the lowest score on 'Management Team knows what is happening on the work floor'. All other groups score sufficient to very good.

6. Question: "Cooperation between my team and other teams within Digital Power works well"

The staff group shows the lowest score (6.3) on "cooperation between my team and other teams works well". Management team (8.3) and Consultants (6.6) show a sufficient to a good score. All group-level scores are above the benchmark (5.8). For CX the score is insufficient (5.4) for this statement.

Illustrative quotes from open questions:
"For me, it is unclear which clients we all work for and what our consultants do there. That insight would help me find the right help when I have questions or want to know more. This would help us work together more efficiently. When we were a smaller organisation, I knew who sat where and for what specialisations, but I am now starting to lose track of that. So I often contact the same people as before, but that is more limited than it could be."

7. Question: "I have sufficient time to perform my tasks properly (within set deadline)"

TWA (5.5), and CX (5.7) consultants show the lowest score on the statement 'I have sufficient time to perform my tasks properly (within set deadline)', and this is also below the benchmark (5.8). DA, DE, Staff and MT show sufficient to good scores.

An illustrative quote from open questions that relates to this question:
"It is incredibly difficult to improve, but the pressure on the team is huge. I notice that in everyone. Only solution I see is to hire more people and cherry-pick more assignments."

8. Question: "Within Digital Power performance is rewarded"

TWA Seniors (5.7), DA Seniors (5.0) and CX (5.0) Consultants show the lowest scores on the statement 'performance is rewarded' and also score below the benchmark (7.2). Remaining groups show scores that are sufficient to very good, where scores for DE Seniors, DA Mediors and staff and MT are also above benchmark.

An illustrative quote from open questions that relates to this question:
"Think it's very unfair that salary revolves around - a meaningless one in our case - seniority level and number of years. That rewards age but not quality of work and how much value you bring to the organisation. That feels very bad. Take those number of years out of the salary scale."

Summary of results of the closed questions

- There is an overall discrepancy in satisfaction rates between MT, Staff and Consultants, where consultants show the lowest general scores on ESS (Employee Satisfaction Survey).
- Consultants generally feel that their salary is not in line with their level of responsibility & performance. Senior consultants among all disciplines show the lowest scores for this question.
- Consultants don't feel that there is a clear decision-making process within Digital Power, whereas MT members feel there is.
- Consultants show the lowest score on the statement 'the work processes are well organized' (5.6 on average), which is also below the benchmark (6.7). For Staff (6.5) and MT (7.9), the score is adequate to good respectively, for which the staff's score is below the benchmark and the MT's score above.
- On the statement: "The vision for the future of Digital Power inspires me", results show a big discrepancy between Staff, MT and Consultant groups, where MT shows a high average score (9.6) compared to Consultants (5.9).
- On "Management Team knows what is happening on the work floor", TWA (5.9), DA Seniors (5.9), and CX (5.7) consultants show the lowest scores, compared to MT (8.6).
- In general, Staff (6.3) and CX consultants (5.4) score relatively low on "Cooperation between my team and other teams within Digital Power works well".
- TWA (5.5), and CX (5.7) consultants show the lowest scores on the statement 'I have sufficient time to perform my tasks properly (within set deadline)', and this is also below the benchmark (5.8).
- TWA Seniors (5.7), DA Seniors (5.0) and CX (5.0) Consultants show the lowest scores on the statement 'performance is rewarded', which is also below the benchmark (7.2).

Open questions

What are employees most proud of

Table 1 shows the results of the selected categories for the open-ended question 'What are you most proud of'?

Table 1: Percentage of people that selected a specific category

88 / 90 answered this question	Percentage of people (that answered this question) that selected this option
My organisation's culture	76%
My team's dynamics (atmosphere, trust)	68%
My organisation as an employer	53%
Collaboration within organization	31%
Work environment (conditions, resources)	28%
Customer focus within my organisation	16%
Communication within my organisation	11%
My organisation's vision and goals	10%
Other	8%

It was possible to select multiple options for this question. After selecting an option, there was the possibility to elaborate in an open field. As described earlier, we did not stick to Effectory's themes for this question, as they did not fit the answers well. Below is an outline of the themes that we found: topics that employees are proud of.

1. We help each other;
2. The employees are put at the centre. Digital Power listens and cares;
3. There is a focus on, and possibilities for personal development;
4. Good atmosphere: casual, informal and 'gezellig';
5. Our skills and knowledge as consultants/data partner: we are motivated and try to help our clients as best as we can;
6. Open organisation: everyone is free to be themselves and is treated with respect;
7. Colleagues: enthusiastic, smart, driven, honest, motivated, diverse, etc;
8. Trust: mutual trust between colleagues, trust to make your own decisions, trust in the quality of your work;
9. Work environment: fringe benefits, flexibility, facilitation;
10. Miscellaneous: Open/transparent organisation. Digital Power takes care to guarantee its' character, norms and values.

What needs improvement

Table 2 shows the results of the selection of the categories for the open question What needs improvement?

Table 2: Percentage of people that selected a specific category

75 / 90 answered this question: Everyone	Percentage of people (that answered this question) that selected this option
Remuneration	41%
Work pressure within my team	27%
Collaboration within organization	25%
Communication within my organisation	23%
Work environment (conditions, resources)	19%
Other	16%
Customer focus within my organisation	15%
My organisation's vision and goals	15%
Development opportunities	12%
My organisation as an employer	9%
My organisation's culture	4%
My team's dynamics (atmosphere, trust)	1%

It was possible to select multiple options. After selecting an option, there was the possibility to elaborate in an open field. For every category, we summarize the most important findings of the reactions to the open question.

Remuneration (41% of people that answered this question, selected this option)

- It is unclear and too undefined in the promotion structure when/how to make a step in seniority.
- The salaries are not market-competitive, especially in light of the current inflation.
- The salary house ('salarishuis' in Dutch) does not reward quality or effort. It only focuses on years of work experience.
- Lastly, the steps in the salary house are not always adequate. This is more visible towards the end of a scale.

Work pressure within my team (27% of people that answered this question, selected this option)

- Work pressure is high, it would be good to have more new employees. If there would be less pressure to be billable for 100% of one's hours, it would be easier to combine this well with internal projects and with being involved in the organisation.
- When there are too many assignments/clients, Business Managers will have to make choices ('cherrypick' assignments) and tell clients 'no'.

Collaboration within organisation (25% of people that answered this question, selected this option)

- The different disciplines could keep each other updated better, and learn more from each other.
- The disciplines could work together more often and more proactively to serve our clients better. It would help to know who works where and on what types of projects.

Communication within my organisation (23% of people that answered this question, selected this option)

- Contact between Business Managers and consultants should be better. For instance, in regards to updates on current affairs, and in not losing sight of consultants on assignment.
- Communication to the organisation should be earlier and more proactively and should reach everyone (at the same time).

- Some subjects are communicated too broadly, which can make it hard for employees to keep up with all messages and updates, while others could be more elaborated. This should be more balanced.

Work environment (19% of people that answered this question, selected this option)

The feedback on this topic varies greatly.

- Furnishing of the offices - various: need for a beamer, larger screens, better hybrid setup for meetings, automatic blinds, etc.
- There could be more standardization or templates, both for staff and consultants: don't reinvent the wheel every time in common situations.
- Accessibility of the offices: accessibility by public transport could be better, and there are too few parking spaces.
- Overall we lack sufficient meeting rooms.

Other (16% of people that answered this question, selected this option)

The next subthemes are based on answers that were filled in on the 'other' category.

- Some processes could be more defined, for less arbitrariness and exceptions.
- Within Digital Power, there is less attention for staff than consultants (e.g. learning path, training, rewards).
- The responsibilities and tasks of MT members are not always clear (both inside and outside of the MT).

Customer focus within my organisation (15% of people that answered this question, selected this option)

- There could be less focus on 'sales', and more on how the client can truly be helped best.
- The match between consultant & client could be better: we should share what's available more so that the consultant can participate in the decision-making process.
- There is uncertainty about the role of the Business Manager: e.g. Who do you need to turn to for an assignment change? Does the Business Manager check in with the customer?

My organisation's vision and goals (15% of people that answered this question, selected this option)

- Vision/goals could be more substantive than being just about growth and turnover, and should be referred to more often.
- Knowledge must be better safeguarded by the organisation. Now, it is scattered across different people, and it is unclear who owns what knowledge.

Development opportunities (12% of people that answered this question, selected this option)

- It is hard to combine full-time assignments and development opportunities. Additionally, it can be hard for a senior to find enough challenge/room for development.
- There could be a little more guidance, perhaps even obligation, for certain training courses.

My organisation as an employer (9% of people that answered this question, selected this option)

- The organisation should act more proactively and faster when there are developments/changes, and should not wait for employees to raise the issue (e.g. with home workplace allowance, employee vitality).

My organisation's culture (4% of people that answered this question, selected this option)

- 'Culture' should be more than just drinking together. The focus should be on a more inclusive culture and should include diverse/different backgrounds and life stages.

Summary of results of open questions

- ✓ In general, the culture within Digital Power is rated as the topic that employees feel the proudest of!
- ✓ Employees are very proud of how they help each other, how employees are central, the focus on development, and the atmosphere.

- ➢ Remuneration needs the most improvement, according to Digital Power employees. This is because of the unclarity of the promotion structure, the salaries not being competitive and the salary house not rewarding effort or quality of work.
- ➢ Collaboration within the organisation needs improvement, such as disciplines updating each other better, and working with each other more often to serve clients better.
- ➢ Work pressure within the teams & work environment needs improvement, as the pressure can be high due to billability and/or too many assignments.
- ➢ Offices could be improved with more meeting rooms, a better hybrid meeting set-up, and better accessibility.
- ➢ Communication within Digital Power needs improvement, like the contact between the Business Manager and consultant. Also, general communication towards the organisation should be improved, focussing on (timely) communicating to the organisation as a whole.
- ➢ Development opportunities: full-time assignments are difficult to combine with development opportunities. Additionally, there is a lack of development opportunities for senior consultants, and more guidance for training courses could be useful.
- ➢ The focus on the customer could be improved by focusing less on sales and more on matching consultants with clients. Consultants are unsure of the role of the BM in changing assignments/contact with their clients.
- ➢ Employees are unsure about Digital Power's vision and goals and are not inspired by the focus on growth and turnover.
- ➢ Processes should be more defined, the responsibilities of MT members should be clarified, and there should be more attention to staff (e.g. in learning paths & rewards). Digital Power could act more proactively on developments: do not wait for employees to raise the issue.

Advisory report for Management Team

A lot is already going well. To improve Digital Power as an organisation, we could still improve some topics. Below is what we feel could be improved the most.

Promotion & remuneration: Review the salary house on general competitiveness (incl. inflation) of salary with special attention for the final steps of the scales and senior consultants. Promotion structure is unclear: revise or clarify this process to reward performance and make sure it is clear what to do/what you need to make a promotion.

Clarity MT → organisation: Create clarity around decision-making & work processes within Digital Power. Act more pro-actively on developments and questions. Consultants are not inspired by Digital Power's vision - make sure that the vision of Digital Power is supported by the whole organisation, not only by the MT. Focus on communicating decisions earlier to gather feedback & communicate plans to the organisation.

Standardisation of processes: Focus on standardization & documentation of work processes for better collaboration within teams and enabling growth through knowledge. Since there are now also new Team Leads; define a (new) set up of rules, processes and procedures.

Balancing all disciplines: Not all disciplines feel that MT knows what is happening on the work floor, where (senior) TWA & CX show the lowest scores. Make sure to strengthen the bond between MT and these disciplines in order to create better operation-related focus.

Work pressure: Focus on relieving work pressure and making sure that everyone has enough time to perform their tasks properly.

Development: Strive to achieve the perfect consultant-client match. Draw up a clear plan that states how everyone can combine internal projects and development trainings with client/staff work. Seek for new development opportunities for senior consultants. Communicate clearly what is possible and expected in terms of development and billability.
