DIGITAL POWER

The New Way of Working

Remote working

Why these guidelines?

We think it is important to provide clarity about 'The New Way of Working'.
Every client is different and deals with this in a different way. We as Digital Power like to discuss certain principles with the client.

How did we arrive at these guidelines?

We've held two online sessions with a diverse group of colleagues as well as received individual input from several colleagues. Combined with our strategy this led to this setup of 'The New Way of Working'.
This setup is subject to change. We will keep adjusting it and so your input is more than welcome. We will evaluate these guideline and modify how and when this is necessary.

The following guidelines result from the sessions with our colleagues:

From a strategic view on our mission and vision, the interest of the co-worker needs to be the central motivation. Depending on the client, we want to have a starting point of 1 day a week at the client's office and 1 day a week at Digital Power's office. This needs to be aligned between the Consultant/Account manager or Business Manager/Client, in this we want to remain flexible. The accessibility of the data with which the consultant has to work, could prove a determining factor here. This also applies to staff employees.

1. Flexible working hours:
    a. Days that you can fill in as you see fit between 7:00 am - 8:00 pm. Communicate clearly through your agenda which hours you work. Work for clients/Digital Power may not suffer from this, meetings should be attended as much as possible. This possibility to be flexible with hours is a possibility, not a right.
    b. Scheduling meetings:
        i. Are you inviting a group of colleagues? Provide a clear description and an agenda in the Outlook invite.
        ii. Are you invited to a meeting with a global theme in which you do not play an active role? Then do not feel obliged to participate: you can also accept tentatively or decline this invitation.
        iii. You can refuse 1-on-1 meetings. If you do refuse, make a counter-proposal for another time or discuss why the meeting is not relevant.
    c. Telephone accessibility:
        i. We expect you to be available on working days between 09.00 am - 17.00 pm. Therefore, telephone accessibility is not dependent on your own flexible arrangement of working hours.

2. Based on travel time from home to the client, we would like to try to work more 'live' with the client based on the outline below. Here, the standard is with a 40-hour work week:

   a. For less than 30 minutes: preferably 3 days at the client's office

   b. 30 minutes to 1 hour: preferably 2 days at the client's office

   c. Longer than one hour: preferably 1 day at the client's office

   d. Maximum of 4 days per week at the client's office

   e. In consultation with Consultant and/or client, this may be waived

   f. There is also the possibility that we are not allowed to work on location

   Example 1: 32-hour work week, distance to client 45 minutes. Then these are some possibilities:
   - 2 days at the client, 1 day DiP office & 1 day working at home
   - 2 days at the client, 2 days DiP office

   Example 2: 32-hour workweek, distance to client 30 minutes. Then these are some possibilities:
   - 3 days at the client, 1 day DiP office
   - 2 days at the client, 1 day DiP office & 1 day working at home
   - 2 days at the client, 2 days DiP office

   Example 3: 32-hour work week. We are not allowed to work at client location. Then these are some possibilities:
   - 2 days DiP office, 2 days working at home
   - 1 day DiP office, 3 days working at home

   Example 4: 32-hour workweek, distance to client 30 minutes, you have 2 different clients. Then these are some possibilities:
   - 1 day at client A, 1 day at client B, 1 day DiP office, 1 day working at home
   - 2 days at client A, 1 day at client B, 1 day DiP office
   - 1 day at client A, 1 day at client B, 2 days DiP office

3. Account Managers and Business Managers will take these guidelines into account and proactively communicate them in assignments: what are the wishes of the client regarding working from home and what are our wishes as Consultants. Assignments are always in consultation with the Consultant. Maximum of 4 days at the client (with a 40-hour work week).

4. Agreements on accessibility and communication within Digital Power on working days:

   a. Teams is the main channel we use to communicate within Digital Power. We use it for online meetings, knowledge sharing and for message traffic that does not require an immediate response. Consider a response time within 24 hours.

   b. Email is for communication where information needs to be shared in a smaller circle. Consider a response time within 3-4 days.

   c. Phone is for direct communication when an immediate response is needed. Same day response time.

   d. WhatsApp is not an official communication channel within Digital Power therefore to be used at your discretion.

5. Agreements on accessibility and communication to clients on weekdays:

   a. On the day(s) that you work for the client, it is clear that you will take care of this within working hours for the client and use a reasonable response time.
   b. On the day(s) that you are not working for the client, Digital Power does not expect you to answer these questions. This is to keep the focus on the client, tasks and assignments that do exist for that day.

6. Try to be present at a Digital Power office 1 day a week, this may be more often if desired or possible.

7. The monthly Business Update: Dip Monthly is online for everyone to follow. You can also watch the recording afterwards.

8. Every week Friday afternoon drinks will take place at both offices. The beer will be cold and there will be plenty of “bitterballen”. Make sure you're there!

9. Trainings are 'live' at both offices.
